National Association of Supervisors of Agricultural Education

The North Carolina FFA Association was awarded the national and southern region Innovation Award for the Wildlife Camp program. This award recognizes at least one state in each region for an innovative idea in curriculum, leadership development, or experiential learning. The NC FFA Wildlife Camp is a highly sought-after, weekend-long, specialized program that leverages partnerships with expert conservation agencies, the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, to deliver hands-on skills training and instill core values.

Allison Jennings, North Carolina Eastern Region Coordinator, was recognized as the National Outstanding State Staff member. The outline of her professional responsibilities involves the routine support of 181 programs that house 272 agricultural education teachers across 41 counties in the eastern portion of the state. The scope of her work encompasses coordinating multiple regional-level competitive events, routine support of teachers, and student leadership conferences in the East Central, Northeast, and Southeast regions of North Carolina.
